10. Please note awards or honors received, degrees or certificates earned, and other recognitions from the current school year.

Please note awards or honors received, degrees or certificates earned, and...

None from this Year. My school does not offer honors or awards. I earned many when I was in school. I have had attended continued education events certification in Mid-level Math

As a first year teacher my principal gave me highly effective in almost every area! I absolutely believe this is due to the education and preparedness that I received from my university and my professors! They have even encouraged me to go back this summer to get my Masters.

Teacher of the month. New teacher of the month

Bachelor of Science in Education Teaching Certificate: Mild/Moderate Disabilities

I've gone to two professional development conferences. Beyond that, depends on who you talk to. Some people say I've done a great job. It's embarrassing to say that my principal has seen to it that credit for anything I have done has gone to someone else, while I have been slandered, even so far as to be written up in a letter of complaint. It's been ridiculous. HR is involved, the superintendent is involved. They know I'm being setup. There are witnesses, documentation... They know. They just can't/won't do anything to help. But that doesn't make me a bad teacher! I will be back again next year, new school, new principal, new situation. I will have something to show for this year.
